LETTER

Sir:

This letter responds to the Notice of Final Determination mailed on 30 January 2008. The applicant for term extension calls to the attention of the Office a possible error in the calculation of the duration (in days) of the period of term extension. As this letter is submitted within one month of the date of the Notice, it is timely.

The Office's calculation of the period of regulatory review, as well as the extended expiration date of the patent as limited by 35 U.S.C. § 156(c)(3), are correct. The original expiration date of the patent is 29 September 2015, and the expiration date of the term extension will be 2 July 2017.

We believe that the period of the term extension should be 642 days, not 643 days as indicated in the Notice. Not including the original expiration date in the calculation (i.e., if the extended expiration date were 30 September 2015, the length of the term extension would be 1 day), we count 642 days from the original expiration date of 29 September 2015 to the extended expiration date of 2 July 2017.

Applicant requests that the Office verify the calculation and issue an appropriate certificate of term extension.

Re: § 156 APPLICATION BASED ON US 5,914,331

Inquiries regarding this letter may be directed to the undersigned. Correspondence should continue to be sent to the correspondence address of record.

Respectfully submitted,

/David L. Fitzgerald/
